Three Reasons that Energy Star Home Sales Are Expected to Rise in SC

*The $1000 per home tax credit for manufacturers that build ENERGY STAR homes was extended retroactively through 2017. Congress is expected to do the same for 2018.

*MHISC's legislation to extend the sales tax incentive for Energy Star homes for five more years in SC has passed the Senate and now goes to the House. The sales tax on the home is zero for Energy Star homes in SC.

*The industry's energy research institution says they will announce changes in the next few weeks to make it easier to qualify a home as Energy Star.

Social Media Ambassadors

Would you be interested in helping to spread the word about manufactured and modular housing?

We're putting together a team known as MHISC Social Media Ambassadors.

If you are involved with Facebook, Twitter, LinkedIn, or Instagram, we'd love for you to play a role.

The goal of the MHISC Social Media Ambassadors is to flood the internet with new developments and vital information about manufactured housing.

Additionally, whenever an issue comes up about manufactured housing, team members will immediately get concise, accurate information that they can post or tweet--or even easier--share or re-tweet.

If you would like to join the team—please email MHISC's new Communications Coordinator Janae Frazier. She can be reached at jfrazier@mhisc.com.
